Description

The 600 Series O Gauge passenger car measured just slightly less than the 1931 613 series cars they usurped. Like the 613s, the 600 series cars were an attempt to create a more realistic O Gauge passenger Car and first appeared in 1933. A one-piece roof adorned the three car types in the series; Baggage, Pullman and Observation.

First appearing in 1938 and differing from their 600 series cousins, the 2600 Series of O Gauge passenger cars added automatic couplers. Featuring all-metal bodies, trucks, wheels and axles, the 2600 series cars make an excellent complement to the 206E and 263E O Gauge steam locomotives.
